

Labour Law and Industrial Relations

The International Encyclopaedia of Labour Law and Industrial Relations is the only comprehensive and concise source of information on labour law and industrial issues covering more than 50 important countries and all the major international bodies like the International Labour Organisation, NAFTA, the EU, the OECD, by way of national and international monographs of 200 pages and more.

This unique looseleaf publication comprises alongside the national and international monographs a codex containing national and international primary legislation well as the most important relevant case law from international courts, such as the Court of Justice of the European Communities.

More than 150 prominent legal scholars and practitioners provide practical information and valuable insights into the legal framework and procedures specific to their country or international organization. Each monograph follows a uniform structure, and includes:

- detailed historical background;
- an introduction to the legal framework; and,
- in-depth analysis of relevant labour law legislation and practice.

A subject index at the end of each monograph provides a useful and timesaving reference aid. Furthermore, a detailed topical table of contents for each monograph facilitates country-to-country and subject-to-subject comparison. Each national monograph contains the following:

Table of contents. List of abbreviations. Preface. General Introduction. Selected Bibliography.

Part I. The Individual Employment Relation.

1. Definition and concepts.
2. Rights and duties of the parties during the employment.
3. Working time, annual vacations, holidays (including overtime and Sunday duty).
4. Remuneration and benefits (minimum wages; various protective measures).
5. Incapacity to work (illness, accidents at work, military service).
6. Job security.
7. Protection of certain categories of workers, protection against discrimination in employment.
8. Covenants of non-competition.
9. Inventions by employees.
10. Settlement of disputes.

Part II. Collective Labour Relations.

1. Trade union freedom.
2. Trade unions and employers' associations.
3. Institutionalized relations between employers and employees.
4. Collective bargaining.
5. Strikes, lock-outs and other legal forms of industrial action.
6. Settlement of industrial disputes and protection of vital needs.
